Are you concerned about emergency access for the Sherwood Corridor?

Submitted by Sherwood Firewise Communities

The recent Oak Fire incident provided clear proof of how important it is to have well-maintained emergency access routes. During the mandatory evacuation of the Sherwood Corridor residents, emergency responders were able to access the fire using the recently cleared FIRCO route allowing evacuating resident vehicles full access to both lanes of Sherwood Road. Sheriff Kendall has stated that this was the smoothest evacuation he has experienced in his 30-year career. Following this successful community-wide effort, other emergency access routes serving the Sherwood Corridor are being developed. A means to fund ongoing maintenance is being considered by the County of Mendocino.

At a "One-Way-in-and-Out Communities" workshop following the Redwood Valley fire in 2018, Brooktrails Fire Chief Jon Noyer informed the public that the "emergency travel routes" designated on the Brooktrails Evacuation Plan had been abandoned and were not available for access. Sherwood Firewise Communities was created by local community volunteers with a major goal of reopening these emergency access routes and to develop a way to maintain them into the future.

The Brooktrails Township Community Services District and the Mendocino County Board of Supervisors have unanimously supported these efforts and are providing ongoing assistance in securing, improving and maintaining more emergency access routes. The Governor of California and CalFire have provided emergency improvements for the FIRCO route and the Willits Creek route work to be performed this year.

Supervisors John Haschak and Dan Gjerde continue to provide leadership for the Ad Hoc Committee on "One-Way-in-and-Out Communities," including the formation of a Benefit Zone to provide funding for maintaining emergency access routes into the future. The Community Foundation of Mendocino awarded a grant to assist with the development of this new Sherwood Corridor Benefit Zone and a large law firm, Kronick, is providing a huge pro bono donation of legal support for the Mendocino County Counsel's Office.

A portion of a larger Sherwood Firewise CalFire grant is being used to perform the roadside fuels reduction along the Willits Creek emergency access route. North Coast Resource Management is providing the registered professional forester services and is coordinating with CalFire and Mendocino County Transportation Department representatives in the vegetation management and related environmental review CEQA permitting. CalFire crews are being scheduled to perform the route clearing work before the next fire season.

Work continues on the other emergency access routes with Brooktrails Township, their legal counsel Chris Neary, and Supervisor Haschak communicating with the route-adjacent property owners. The Primrose emergency access route from Highway 20 and Exley Lane looks promising and would provide a much-needed southern slope access from Highway 20. Sections of Ridge Road cross private property with gates blocking a critical route at the top of the ridge that also has a route connecting to Highway 20.

The supervisors have unanimously approved moving the Benefit Zone formation process forward with the next steps being a board resolution to form the Benefit Zone, public notice, workshops, public hearing, and a ballot sent to all owners of improved properties in the zone. Sherwood Firewise is holding a special Zoom Meeting on February 11 from 6 to 8 pm to discuss the Emergency Access Route maintenance through the formation of a Benefit Zone. Please join us.

Uninterrupted Flow

Brooktrails water treatment crew and fire department work 'day and night' to keep faucets running during power outages

Water is ultimately important to all life, including the residents of Brooktrails. Too often the delivery and distribution of that valuable commodity is taken for granted. People twist their knobs to the left and the water begins to flow into their coffee pots, their showers, their dish basins, and their toilets. Few think about the complexities involved for a community government to provide the means to keep that water flowing.

The delivery of the water requires electric power to get the water into the homes. During the recent snowstorm, Brooktrails lost their power for several days, necessitating above-normal efforts on the part of the township, the water, and fire departments to make sure obstacles to the delivery were dealt with and the water flowed uninterrupted.

Tamara Alaniz, city manager of Brooktrails Township, spoke to Willits Weekly about the challenges of water delivery during the recent crisis: "We have been preparing with public safety power shut off in the case of losing power. When we lost power, we knew that we were more prepared and ready to address it after the snow storm, but what happened is that many of our sites were inaccessible. Even though we had mobile and stationary generators, there were some situations where we couldn't get fuel to them. There were a lot of challenges keeping the water flowing.

"We have had to spend the most staff time and energy, fuel and hours on Spring Creek," Alaniz explained. "We think that the snow storm probably caused quite a few leaks out there that we can't access quite yet. We've done some work out there trying to find where some of those are, but it's extremely difficult to keep the one 60,000-gallon tank that we have for that area full. That tank is at a very high elevation, so it took at least five generators to get water up to Spring Creek.

"The utility and fire crews were working day and night. The fire department was able to take on a few tasks to help us gain accessibility to various sites because they rely on water for fire suppression. When we are in a power outage, people are running generators and people are needing rescue, so we wanted to make sure that we were all working together to ensure that both the water supply was sound for health and safety, of course, and for fire suppression, and also working together on access and getting generators up to where they were needed to keep the water flowing."

In the end, the water kept flowing, albeit with instances of lower pressure in some areas. Additionally, the crews were able to keep the sewers working and the toilets flushing properly, which was more important with people stuck in their homes. The fallen trees did not impact the infrastructure, with the exception of accessibility in getting to the areas that needed to be serviced or placing the emergency generators where they were needed.

On the plus side, "There are definitely some silver linings to the snow storm," explained Alaniz. "Our reservoirs are full. As the snow melts, you get a slower infiltration of water. You don't have as much runoff or runoff losses downhill, so we have definitely benefited from that.

"The water in Brooktrails does not come from snowmelt as it does in other parts of the state. "Our water comes from precipitation, rain and surface runoff. Let's say you have a rainstorm like we've been having in the last couple days, a lot of the rain falls directly into the lakes, but it also runs into the lake from out of the ground, like from the forested areas, and transfers through the ground. That's not ground water. That's precipitation and surface runoff. It also runs off of the pavement, which is why it's so important for people to not litter, dump their oil, have leaky chemicals. Surface runoff goes into Willits Creek and every other creek around here. We want to make sure that what is running into the creeks is clean. That's one of the reasons we don't want people to litter.

"Our crews are out in the fields all day every day and when they see things, they look into it. Our crews live here in Brooktrails and they want to do what's best for their own community. They do it because they live here and they care what's going on, not just because it's their job."

HOW TO SUDOKU

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Baking a Business

Reza's Breadery artisanal sourdough breads are disappearing off the shelves at Mariposa Market in Willits

Reza Ghannadan and his wife, Deb, are thrilled they can now offer the greater Willits community Reza's sourdough bread. They finished getting the necessary licenses and permits to be able to offer their bread at Mariposa Market and other businesses.

Ree Slocum, Features Writer, willitsweekly@gmail.com
When Willits Weekly stopped at Mariposa Friday to photograph the loaves on the shelves, it was impossible to find them. According to employee Matt Montes, "We started off with 12 loaves of [Reza's] bread at 9 this morning. By 1:30 they were all gone!" That says a lot.

The couple is known to be very generous and use their bread for fundraising. That started when young Reza watched his mother open the back gate to their Persian home to feed the long line of hungry people. According to his wife, Reza is known to "Love to nurture with food."

The artisan baker started making bread about 23 years ago. "That was always my passion," he said. "I just love it! There is an amazing Zen-like feel when you touch the dough that was done with sourdough starter – with the mother," he mused. "It's just very silky and it's very supple."

Baking sourdough bread wasn't always a business. In fact, it was something he enjoyed so much he gave it away to friends and family. Many people he worked with at Adventist Health Howard Memorial were gifted with the boules of warm, hand-crafted, delicately soured and delicious breads. He inadvertently created a following.

The couple decided to use his passion for crafting bread to help out different organizations' fundraising efforts. Because of their generosity, his following of hundreds of people were happy to buy the boules to support a variety of causes. One of their recent fundraising endeavors helped bring thousands of dollars to the Willits Senior Center for a backup generator.

Last year Reza was working for the corporate end of Adventist Health, helping doctors and nurses learn to navigate charting their patients. When COVID-19 hit he was laid off. "We couldn't do any in-person interactions, so they laid off a slew of the people in that program and I was one of them," he told.

The week before he was laid off, the couple had been working on a fundraising project for Community Crossroads and Our Daily Bread. When they were working on it he said of being let go, "I said, 'OK, we have to transition from a not-for-profit to some profit!'" They laughed. His wife added, "So that thing of 'When one door closes, another opens?'" Well that was seamless!

Their business started mind-bogglingly fast. Deb created a Facebook group page so their community following could order their bread. They had, and still have, a bread stand at their house where customers can walk up the drive to pay and pick it up. "It's all COVID safe," she assured.

"We always wanted the bakery to have a French village feel," Deb shared. "The neighbors walk up for their bread and serve themselves. If we're upstairs and we see them walking down the hill, it gives us so much pleasure. It's like a village!"

So what's so special about Reza's bread?

His passion for making the bread and the constant care he gives the 27-year-old mother sourdough – he named Ada – are the main ingredients. Those qualities are coupled with the 18 hours the entire process takes, where he pays close attention to details: weighing and measuring ingredients; timing the resting periods; folding the dough; and cutting, forming and refrigerating the boules overnight in controlled-temperature refrigerators.

"By the morning the bread has had time to absorb all the flavors as it works in the very cold, which retards the fermentation and enhances the taste. Then I just start baking it," the bread maker said.

For those who are gluten sensitive, the Ghannadans' have had reports from a few customers that their artisanal sourdough doesn't

Storm Zone

Snow and wind battle Brooktrails, leaving roads blocked and thousands without power

The normally narrow lanes of the Sherwood Corridor were made even narrower by the insistent branches and tree trunks insinuating themselves onto the roadway, left by the violence of the unprecedented winter storm.

In the still Wild West area of Willits, the residents need to be of the hearty and adventurous variety of humans, withstanding fires, floods, and the rare but dramatic snowstorms that try to drive them from their homes. But the eight inches of snow in one evening kept them sequestered even more than the raging COVID pandemic.

The people waited patiently for either the snowplows to create paths or for the snow to melt, to the point where they could escape their driveways and journey into the town, only to find several of the major arteries clogged with fallen trees or crews working on clearing the trees and restoring the power.

On Tuesday, January 26, many of the trees lost their valiant battle with the surprising volume of snow and at the higher elevations, blistering forceful winds. The insurmountable weight of the pure white, but deceptively heavy snow tore off branches and snapped trunks. Some trees came crashing down across power lines, cutting off electricity to thousands of Brooktrails residents, one area at a time.

The unexpected brute power of the storm caught residents and utilities unprepared. Some were caught in town, not able to get back to their homes and families, as Sherwood Road, the only reasonable ingress into the area, had been made a war zone from fallen trees, live power lines, and snow that was too high to traverse. Many had to wait for hours on the road, not knowing if they had enough fuel to wait it out while the crews worked tirelessly to make the road passable.

Days later, the force of the snow and wind were visible in the broken trees, which loomed like feathery arches over the roads, with their splintered stumps and piles of branches, awaiting the arrival of road crews.

Many stories of bravery and fortitude and determination emerged from the carnage. The sheriffs had to rescue an Adventist Health worker as she attempted to brave the snow and became mired. Lesale Coatney found a family of three who had lost a battle with a fallen tree in their BMW and invited them in for the night.

Crews from Caltrans had to "hunker down in the dark of the night," according to a press release, "sheltering from large cracking and falling trees amidst heavy snow and winds." They got through the night "by rationing a questionable package of beef jerky." As soon as the sun came up, they were back clearing downed trees to free up Highway 101.

A mother and her three children had to wait in the freezing cold for hours in their car on Tuesday night, to traverse up Sherwood Road, only to be saved by the Brooktrails Fire Department, who brought them food and extra gas so they could stay warm.

PG&E brought supplies, over 7,000 blankets, 4,000 batteries, and water to local tribes, including Cahto Tribe of Laytonville Rancheria, Coyote Valley Band of Pomo Indians, and Round Valley Indian Tribe.

PG&E had their hands full, trying to restore power in their service areas in northern and north coast counties, especially Willits, Laytonville and Covelo. "As of Monday morning, February 1, there were still about 2,260 customers without power, mostly in Willits and Laytonville," PG&E spokesperson Deanna Contreras explained.

"We have Estimated Restoration Times, or ETORs, which customers should be receiving the texts, emails, and automated phone. After assessing the damage, and completing the assessments, we get the ETOR depending on what equipment needs to be replaced, how long it takes to get that equipment to that area and make the repairs and turn the power back on. Most of the ETORs for the 2,260 customers is for tonight." However, at the time of this writing an ETOR went out saying power would be restored by 5 pm, February 2.

"This was the strongest unprecedented atmospheric storm," Contreras continued, "we have seen in several years, that hit, not only Mendocino County and not only the North Coast, but all of the PG&E service territory from Central California, all the way up to Eureka. Because of the prolonged days of the winds and heavy rain, and prolonged and low-level snow in some of the areas that usually do not get snow.

"We have been hardening PG&E's system," she said, "building a more-resilient grid for wildfire mitigation which has been our plan for the last couple years, bringing in the stronger conductor, what we call 'tree wire' that is thicker and stronger and holds up to the trees falling on the line, which has helped us during storms. It's only been about two years that we've been doing this. We're replacing the poles with steel or fiberglass and using thicker conductors in the major fire areas."

OBITUARY | Stacy Shaul

Stacy Shaul, 44, passed away due to a lengthy illness on Thursday, January 21. He left this world comfortable in his bed and with his mother, Sharon, at his side.

Stacy worked as the bus driver for the Willits Senior Center for many years. He enjoyed his work and loved making the local seniors smile. He often volunteered his time and money to assist in community events. He wore his heart on his sleeve and never thought twice about helping a friend in need, even if it meant giving something up himself.

He loved sports and spent much of his time reading stats and drafting his perfect fantasy teams. He had a passion for cooking and would make nearly enough food to feed the whole neighborhood. He showed his love through food, and if you ever had the chance to try his cooking, you should definitely feel lucky.

Stacy was always the life of the party – laughing, singing, joking, and picking on his nieces, nephews, and children like it was his second job! It was nearly impossible not to laugh when spending time with him. He lived and loved harder in his 44 years than most people do in 80. Anyone who had the pleasure of knowing him should feel blessed for the time they had with him. He was a light in this world that will be truly missed.

Stacy is survived by his three children – Anthony, Dominic and Stacy. He loved nothing more than his family, especially his children, who were (and still are) his pride and joy.

DMV offering behind-the-wheel driving tests again

Previously postponed tests will be automatically rescheduled

By DMV, Office of Public Affairs, Sacramento

The California Department of Motor Vehicles has resumed behind-the-wheel driving tests statewide as of February 1, as per a January 28 announcement. The DMV previously postponed all behind-the-wheel tests through the end of January for the health and safety of customers and employees during the statewide surge in COVID-19 cases.

The DMV will automatically reschedule customers for behind-the-wheel drive test appointments that were canceled between December 14 and February 1. Rescheduling is expected to begin in the next two weeks, and customers will be notified by text of their rescheduled appointment. DMV anticipates new appointments for behind-the-wheel tests will be available in mid-February once all previously postponed tests have been rescheduled.

In-vehicle testing is a requirement for first-time driver's license holders and commercial license applicants. The temporary suspension included commercial and noncommercial tests, but did not apply to motorcycle drive tests, which can be conducted at a safe distance.

The DMV previously extended eligible permits with expiration dates through May 31, 2021, for six months from the date of expiration, or to a date 24 months from the date of application, whichever is earlier. This automatic extension requires no paperwork and gives student drivers more time during the COVID-19 pandemic to complete the prerequisites needed for a provisional license. The DMV also has extended expiring commercial driver's licenses, commercial learner's permits, certificates and endorsements through February 28, 2021.

To protect customers and employees, the DMV requires everyone who enters DMV offices to wear a face covering, physically distance, respond to health screening questions and have their temperature checked. To best serve customers and maintain appropriate distance, the number of people allowed in the office is limited, chairs are appropriately spaced and plexiglass has been installed.

Safety measures in place for behind-the-wheel tests include required face coverings, respond to health screening questions, temperature checks, cracked windows for increased air circulation and seat covers.

While DMV offices remain open to serve the public, the DMV continues to encourage all customers to use its online services (www.dmv.ca.gov/portal/dmv-online/), expanded virtual services and other service channels to complete transactions, including eligible driver's license and vehicle registration renewals.

Nearly all Californians can now renew their driver's license online – www.dmv.ca.gov/portal/driver-licenses-identification-cards/driver-license-id-card-online-renewal/ – even if the renewal notice states an office visit is required.

Customers can also use the Service Advisor (www.dmv.ca.gov/portal/make-an-appointment/service-advisor/) on the DMV website to learn their options to complete DMV tasks.

Abstracts of inconsistencies and 'stylized realism' displayed in the paintings of two talented artists at WCA this February

Submitted by Willits Center for the Arts

The Willits Center for the Arts presents two Willits artists, Laura Fargey and Lynn Thompson. The two women take different views on painting.

Lynn Thompson, who moved to Willits from Florida, takes color and makes exciting abstract and impressionistic images on canvases. "For over 50 years," shared Thompson, "I have had the privilege to communicate my need to connect with the world in dark times, and rejoice in the good times through my art. I find that I best express myself using abstracts to address the inconsistency of life."

Whether it be acrylics or oil paints, her art allows her to present a glimpse of nature in an ever-changing world. When she is creating a painting, she chooses the colors and lines, then lets the piece determine its outcome. It allows viewers to interpret the meaning of the piece for themselves.

Laura Fargey of Willits has been making art since 1967. She paints and draws from her own photographs. She adapts photos as vehicles for a personal statement, which she calls "stylized realism." The working technique is deliberate, slow and methodical, resulting in a tapestry of detail.

"I don't expect certain rendered areas in my paintings or drawings to be literal or recognizable," said Fargey. "There is always a combination of realism and abstraction going on simultaneously in every piece. Some works have more abstract areas than others; some are predominately realistic. The newest series, 'The Eel River,' is a departure from the earlier work, as it focuses on the beauty of a natural setting with no figurative influences."

This show opens Friday, February 5 and will be on display through February 28. Gallery hours are 11 am to 5 pm, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The Willits Center for the Arts, located at 71 East Commercial Street, is located next to the Noyo Theatre. For more information, call 459-1726.

The Petition for Probate requests that Larry Haven, Jr. be appointed as Personal Representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) Date: February 5, 2021 at 9:00 a.m. in Dept. E of the Mendocino County Superior Court, located at 100 No. State Street, Ukiah, California 95482.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing of personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

Get your books in order ... free workshops on Quickbooks

Submitted by the West Business Development Center

On four successive Thursdays in February, beginning on February 4, West Center will offer free workshops on how to use QuickBooks for your business. Since its launch back in the 1990s, QuickBooks has become the leader in financial-management software. Used both by small businesses and accounting professionals, QB now has a commanding lead in the market.

A great program to use once you're familiar with it, QB can, however, be daunting for new users. And, there are significant differences between the desktop and online versions. Instructor Rebecca Lehman will lead all four sessions focusing on the desktop version of the software.

Lehman has over 25 years of accounting experience and runs her own business, Accounting Advantage. She has extensive experience working with many different business models from construction, manufacturing, retail, restaurants, financial institutes, service industry, and non-profit corporations. Well-versed in several accounting software programs, Lehman prefers QuickBooks over all, making her the ideal instructor.

Here's a look at why QuickBooks is an invaluable partner for your business:

- Save time on bookkeeping and paperwork. Many simple bookkeeping tasks can be handled automatically making it easier to run your business.
- Generate informational reports that show you where your business stands. These make it easy to assess whether you're making or losing money.
- QuickBooks is affordable. A small investment will reap big rewards.
- QuickBooks can help your business grow. You can design a business plan to help secure loans or lines of credit. Create balance sheets, profit and loss statements, and cash flows to help you plan for the future.
- Customize the program to work for your particular business. Did you know that QuickBooks has customized

Stacy Starkey promoted to president of Savings Bank of Mendocino County

Submitted by Savings Bank of Mendocino County

The Savings Bank of Mendocino County Board of Directors has announced the promotion of Stacy Starkey to president. This is a strategic step in the succession process to succeed Scott Yandell at the time of his planned retirement later this year. Scott will continue as the chief executive officer until retirement.

"The bank has a strong executive leadership succession plan in place to ensure a seamless transition for continued growth and stability," said Yandell. "We will ensure that the leadership of the bank continues to serve our shareholders, employees, customers and the community now and in the future."

Scott Yandell has served as president and CEO at Savings Bank of Mendocino County since June 2011. He came to Savings Bank with more than 30 years in the industry as a community banker. With the understanding that a great local bank is a keystone of the community's economy, Scott has been committed to sustaining the bank's position as one of the strongest community banks in the nation.

Stacy Starkey began her career with Savings Bank of Mendocino County in 1994, spending her first few years in the Investment Department before transferring to the Loan Department. Stacy was appointed senior lending officer in July of 2014. Stacy grew up in Ukiah, graduated from Ukiah High School, earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Finance from USC and attended one of the nation's premier masters-level extension programs for senior officers in the banking industry. Stacy is dedicated to ensuring that Savings Bank continues to meet all of the financial needs of its communities the way only a local bank can.

Established in 1903, Savings Bank of Mendocino County is the only locally chartered community bank and the only financial institution with its headquarters in Mendocino County. Savings Bank has nine banking centers located throughout Mendocino and Lake counties.

Sweet Joy

Joy is truly a Joy. She has lots of energy and needs a job. Unfortunately, Joy was adopted and abruptly returned as it was not the right fit. She does not have house manners but is willing to learn with the right person. Dogs don't come knowing what the house rules are and no one has taken the time to teach her. The right adopter will need to understand this will take time and patience. She is very sweet and aims to please and will surely entertain you.

Joy is a border collie mix, only weighs 38 pounds, and is a young pup at only a year old.

She would be a great hiking partner or make a great ranch dog. She is very playful and great with other dogs.

If you think Joy would be a great fit in your home and you're willing to put in the work, call the Ukiah Animal Shelter at 707-463-4427 to make an appointment to meet her.

To see the Mendocino County Animal Shelter's canine and feline guests, and for information about services, programs, events and updates about COVID-19 and the inland shelter, located at 298 Plant Road in Ukiah, visit: www.mendocinoinnshelter.com. Bonded Littermates Celeste and T'Chala are a 5-month-old bonded brother and sister pair. They have lived their whole lives together and we are hoping to find a forever home that would like to adopt them both.

Celeste (gray) and T'Chala (black) are sweet as can be and love to get pets and cuddles. In return, they will give you nose bumps and curl up on your lap. They get along well with other cats and dogs and will be a perfect addition to many homes! If you are looking for a pair of cuddle bugs, apply to love these siblings today.

The Humane Society for Inland Mendocino County, 9700 Uva Drive in Redwood Valley, is open Wednesday through Friday from 1 to 5 pm, and Saturday and Sunday from 11 am to 3 pm, by appointment only, for intakes, adoptions and fostering. start the process of re-opening our schools, due to our efforts as a community to avoid gatherings, wear masks, and maintain social distance," explained Mendocino County Public Health Officer Dr. Andrew Coren. Schools are able to start the reopening process for K-6 students because Mendocino County is currently in the state's COVID-19 purple tier.

"In addition to those efforts, we here at Public Health are thrilled that our efforts to vaccinate as many teachers as possible have been successful, with much assistance from the Mendocino County Office of Education, Mendocino County school districts, schools, teachers, staff, parents, community partners, rural clinics and Adventist Health."

"This pandemic has tested all of us," said Mendocino County Office of Education Superintendent Michelle Hutchins. "However, as often happens in Mendocino County, we find that by working together we can achieve a lot. The Mendocino County Office of Education is grateful for the partnership with Public Health, and we are continually impressed by the tireless efforts of school district superintendents and school leaders countywide."

Ukiah Unified School District Superintendent Deb Kubin coordinated events to increase vaccination rates across all districts.

"We are looking forward to welcoming our incredible students back to campuses when local conditions allow it," said Kubin. "We have taken all of the necessary steps to support a safe transition. We appreciate everything Mendocino County Public Health has done to support and guide us during this pandemic."

The process for re-opening schools is complex and will take time, and the public is asked to remain patient as schools complete the process to open in-person instruction for kindergarten through sixth grade. Schools and school district will reach out to provide updates as soon as they can. Other grades may not re-open in-person instruction at this time.

Schools may re-open in-person instruction for students in kindergarten through 6th grade after the completion of the following steps:

- Completion of a COVID-19 Safety Plan, which consists of a COVID-19 Prevention Program document and a School Guidance Checklist. Both documents may be viewed at <https://schools.covid19.ca.gov/>.

- Submission of the school's COVID-19 Safety Plan to Mendocino County Office of Education.

- Submission of the school's COVID-19 Safety Plan to the Mendocino County Public Health Department.

- If no identified deficiencies are noted by the state or by Mendocino County Public Health within seven business days of submission, a school may open on the eighth business day for in-person instruction. Note again that this only applies to children in kindergarten through sixth grades.

- A school's COVID-19 Safety Plan must be posted on the home-page of the school's website prior to re-opening.

Schools may re-open to all grades once Mendocino County maintains COVID-19 red tier qualifications for longer than five consecutive days, as stated in the state's Blueprint for a Safer Economy.

In order to address the many question that will arise during this process, Mendocino County Public Health is partnering with schools to create a fact sheet that will be available by the end of this week. "We respectfully ask for the community's patience, as we believe the majority of questions you have will be addressed in the fact sheet," Dr. Coren concludes. The fact sheet will be posted on the county's website and through social media.

To stay abreast of the county's COVID-19 response, follow Mendocino County on Facebook, and Twitter or visit the county's COVID-19 website at www.mendocinocounty.org/community/novel-coronavirus.

announcing an event, with a sign-up link to make an appointment, as well as the age group or tier that is qualified.

"We recognize the great need in our community for accurate and timely information around where or how to get vaccinated. One of our challenges has been reaching out to the general public, within the qualified tiers to inform them about vaccination opportunities. There is not one database that exists that includes this demographic and contact information. The goal is to be able to reach as many people as possible so we can vaccinate and protect our community and get one step closer to the end of this pandemic," explains Judson Howe, president for Adventist Health in Mendocino County which manages the hospitals and clinics on the coast, Ukiah and Willits.

Adventist Health has been holding mass vaccination events around the county and has administered over 5,000 vaccines since December 18.

"We continue to improve our processes to make it efficient and safe for everyone. It takes a lot of work and planning, but I'm

As of February 2, the deaths of 39 Mendocino County residents have been attributed to COVID-19.

The 7-day average daily positive cases count is 24.14, with the 7-day average percentage of positive tests at 7.24 percent.

Broken down by age, the total COVID case count is now 81 cases among those aged 0-5; 151 cases aged 6-12; 277 cases aged 13-18; 1,146 cases aged 19-34; 905 cases aged 35-49; 590 cases aged 50-64, and 324 cases among those aged 65 and older.

announcing the results, "but we're still nowhere near out of the woods."

The February 3 snowpack number is also 68 percent of the April 1 average at the Phillips Station snow course.

"We refer to the percent of average for April 1," de Guzman explained, "because in terms of snow water content, that's typically when our snow pack is at its peak each year."

The series of storms over the last couple of weeks in Northern California "brought a significant amount of rain and snow," de Guzman said, "however these storms are not nearly enough to make up the deficit that we have accumulated over the last few months. For the first three months of the winter year, October, November and December [2020], precipitation statewide was only 39 percent of average," he said.

"To make up for those early dry months, we'll need multiple days of above-average precipitation. But at this point, it looks like we're just going to continue to be chasing average conditions for the foreseeable future."

De Guzman did explain conditions were better in the northern part of the state. Statewide, California's automated snow sensor network "is currently reporting 70 percent of average to date as of this morning," he said.

"Lack of rain and snow in the southern Sierras is a significant factor in this statewide deficit During typical La Nina years, like this year, a ridge of high pressure extremely proud of our teams for stepping up to do this very important work of vaccinating the community, in addition to their regular roles of providing patient care for our community" shares Bessant Parker, MD, chief medical officer for Adventist Health.

Anyone can sign up for the email notification and get alerts when there are events and find out when it's their turn for a vaccine. But for now, the hospitals are focused on vaccinating individuals 75 and older due to limited vaccine supplies and following prioritization guidelines from the California Department of Health and Mendocino County Public Health.

"Our challenge is that the vaccine supplies don't match the demand. Our teams are eager and determined to do more of these mass vaccination events, but we are dependent on the supply allocation that we receive from the state. We are encouraged with the great interest from our community to get vaccinated. But we must continue prioritizing those who are most vulnerable and are disproportionately dying from COVID-19 in our community," explains Dr. Parker.

Proof of age and ID will be required for every tier getting vaccinated. As Adventist Health gets more allocations from the state as a Multi-County Entity, more mass vaccination clinics will be scheduled. Vaccine clinics will also be announced through the media, the three hospitals' social media pages as well as through radio.

Adventist Health manages the three hospitals and affiliated clinics in Mendocino County: Howard Memorial, Mendocino Coast and Ukiah Valley.
